Maria Francesca Guli

Date of birth: 28/04/1962

I graduated in Education (1985) and completed two postgraduate university course (Family Orientation and Methods of Evaluation); I have attended various updating seminars in the field of guidance.

I have been working at the Arces, in the Guidance and Mobility Centre area, since 1993 with the role of guidance counselor, and since May 2015 in “Agency for Work” area (also with the role of tutor of Garanzia Giovani Project). I have prepared, along with other experts, guides, questionnaires, hypertexts, slides for university and professional orientation. I participated in organizing many events for orientation and the job offer meeting. I worked with ARCES and with CIAPI in the field of active labor policies and as a trainer for college students in the soft skills area. I develop and writing, with other expert, research in the field of guidance and education, and I have written many publication in guidance’ field.

During the academic years 2005, 2006 and 2007 I taught “Experimental Pedagogy” at the University of Palermo as a contract professor and I taught philosophy at high school for five years. This has allowed me to better understand the needs of university students and future university students. I was speaker at course for teachers of high school on the guidance thematic.

During several years of work, especially in ARCES, I have developed good skills: communication with both young people and adults; public speaking (various courses and conferences); teamwork and team building; written communications; relationship in classroom contexts; adapt to new environments.
